

To my patients,

It is with mixed emotions that I announce my retirement from AWOG and the practice of obstetrics and gynecology. Caring for patients has been the most rewarding aspect of my 36-year medical career. When I came to Atlanta in 1993, I was fortunate to join this wonderful practice of well-trained physicians. For nearly 32 years, I've had the pleasure of working alongside this talented team of physicians, nurses, medical assistants, and administrative staff who have made AWOG a well-respected practice in the Atlanta community.

Over the years, I've come to know many of you very well. We've laughed together, cried together, and shared many similar life experiences. Some of you have been with me throughout my entire AWOG career. And with some of you, I now have a close friendship. It has been my pleasure to help you during your journey to parenthood, to assist you with personal health challenges, to comfort you during times of sorrow, and to be with you as you face the changes and challenges that come with aging. As a young person, I knew that I was blessed with the gift of service. The field of obstetrics and gynecology has allowed me to care for others with a sense of joy, dedication, and pride.

As I transition to this next chapter, I'm excited to develop my hobbies of golf and cycling, spend more time with family and friends, travel more extensively, and, last but not least, GET MORE SLEEP!

I thank you all for your commitment to me and to AWOG. I hope that you will entrust your future care to the team of qualified, caring physicians that I call my friends and who continue to make AWOG a great place. It has truly been a joy and my sincere pleasure to be a part of your lives. So long for now. Hopefully our paths will cross again in the near future.

With warm regards,

Cyd Williams MD
